The Gymnastics Score
In the gymnastic the maximum score was the 'perfect ten' until it was replaced with the 'Code of Points system. Here is how it works:
* One panel of judges starts from 0, adding points for requirements, difficulty and connections. (D Score)
* A second panel of judges starts from 10.0, and deducts for execution and artistry. (E Score)
* The final score is determined by adding the difficulty score (D) and the execution score (E).

On the scorecard blow are some of the results from the women's Olympic competition. Add up each competitors score from the four routines they performed and rank them in order from one to eight.
